ESSENTIAL FACTS RELATED TO ALL COUNTS

A. EMS Certification and the Practice of Medicine in Colorado

1. Colorado law defines the practice of medicine to include the following:

Holding out one's self to the public within this state as being able to diagnose, treat, prescribe for, palliate, or prevent any human disease; ailment; pain; injury; deformity; physical condition; or behavioral, mental health, or substance use disorder, whether by the use of drugs, surgery, manipulation, electricity, telemedicine, the interpretation of tests, including primary diagnosis of pathology specimens, images, or photographs, or any physical, mechanical, or other means whatsoever; [or]

Suggesting, recommending, prescribing, or administering any form of treatment, operation, or healing for the intended palliation, relief, or cure of a person's physical disease; ailment; injury; condition; or behavioral, mental health, or substance use disorder

§ 12-240-107(1)(a), (b), C.R.S.

2. To lawfully practice medicine in Colorado, a person must either have a medical license or fall under a statutory exemption from the licensing requirement. § 12-240-107(1)(a), (b), C.R.S. One such exception is the rendering of services by a certified or licensed emergency medical service (hereinafter, "EMS") provider, so long as the services are consistent with the duties and functions of EMS providers.¹ See § 12-240-107(3)(w), C.R.S.

3. The Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment (hereinafter, “CDPHE”) is responsible for certifying EMS providers in Colorado. § 25-3.5-203(b), C.R.S. Among other factors, CDPHE is required by law to consider an applicant’s criminal history to determine whether the applicant has committed a crime of moral turpitude that “disqualifies the applicant from certification or licensure.” § 25-3.5-203(b)(III), C.R.S.

4. A person who is certified to provide EMS is sometimes referred to as an emergency medical technician, or “EMT.” CDPHE offers several levels of EMS certification, including the following: basic EMT certification (authorizing basic life support services); EMT certification with IV authorization (permitting intravenous therapy); advanced EMT certification (authorizing intermediate life support services); and paramedic certification (authorizing advanced life support services). CDPHE’s EMS certifications expire and are subject to renewal every three years.

B. Lauren Wilson’s Criminal Conduct

5. On June 15, 2009, CDPHE issued a paramedic certificate to Lauren Wilson. In or around 2011, CDPHE became aware that Wilson had a criminal history under the name “Loren Wilson” that constituted grounds to revoke his certification. On June 15, 2012, before CDPHE could complete the revocation process, Wilson’s paramedic certificate expired. He has not been certified or licensed to provide EMS services in Colorado since that date.

6. Wilson was born on November 28, 1971. On or about May 10, 2021, Wilson applied for the job of education director at a company called Action Medical LLC (hereinafter, “Action Medical”). As part of his application, Wilson submitted a résumé and other documents that falsely represented that he was certified as a paramedic. Wilson also provided documents that falsely listed his birth date as November 8, 1971, including one purporting to be a printout of an electronic version of his Colorado driver license, with the apparent purpose of concealing his criminal history. Based on these false representations, the company hired Wilson.

7. On July 12, 2022, Wilson was hired by Metro Care Ambulance LLC (hereinafter, “Metro Care”) as a paramedic and EMS education director. To obtain this position, Wilson again submitted paperwork falsely representing that he was certified as a paramedic and that his birth date was November 8, 2021.

8. Between July 12, 2022, and September 28, 2022, despite his lack of an EMS certificate or license, Wilson worked as a paramedic for Metro Care and provided medical care to over one hundred patients. In most instances, Wilson was the only purported paramedic in the ambulance and thus was the only person supposedly certified to provide advanced life support. On numerous occasions, Wilson's ambulance transported nursing-home residents who were in critical condition to hospital emergency rooms. On some occasions, patients were transported to a hospital unwillingly or without consent. On other occasions, Wilson provided intravenous therapy—medical care requiring a specific type of EMT authorization—to patients during transport. And on one occasion, Wilson administered oxygen through a preexisting cricothyrotomy opening in a patient's neck.

9. On August 2, 2022, Wilson applied to CDPHE to be the education program gatekeeper for Metro Care—a position that does not require EMS certification. In his application, he truthfully listed his birth date as November 28, 1971.

10. On September 29, 2022, Wilson reapplied for paramedic certification. In his application to CDPHE, Wilson falsely represented that he had never been charged or convicted of a misdemeanor or felony offense in Colorado or another state. On the same date, Wilson logged into a CDPHE online portal and changed his listed birth date from November 28, 1971, to November 8, 1971. Wilson also emailed CDPHE a name-based background report by the Colorado Bureau of Investigation (hereinafter, "CBI") that was based on the false birth date of November 8, 1971. Because Wilson did not request a background report using his true birth date, the CBI report did not identify any of his criminal history.

11. Hours after Wilson submitted his paramedic application, CDPHE sent him a "cease and desist" letter instructing him to cease providing EMS services. On December 21, 2022, CDPHE denied Wilson's paramedic application.

12. CDPHE are headquartered in the City and County of Denver in the State of Colorado. Action Medical and Metro Care are headquartered in Arapahoe County in the State of Colorado.
